us that Gov. Clark, of North Carolina, had made proposels for anrendering the State to General Burneide. The people of the State should surrender the Governor to the Genaral, for he hes been acting in open disrogard of their wishes, and stood in a treesonable attitude to the Government when the people were layel. The lest legislation of the State on the entject of joining the Confederacy provided that no ordinance carrying North Carolina out of the Union 'sbonid have any force or validity until it should have been submitted to and ratified by a majority of the qualified voters of the State." This bee never been done, and therefore those who dragged her perforce into rebellion ought to be severely punished. The New York Times calls to our recollection that it is not much over a veer since the North Carolina delegation in the National Congress telegraphed to the then Governor to quell at ones all incipient insurrectionary movements, that thus the State might be "saved from being drawn into the vortex of certain ruin." The advice was unheeded by the then secession Governor-Brown-and he ordered the seizure of Fort Mecon and the other fortifications which are now, one hy one, agalu falling resentatives foresaw, ee the consequence of dis now in cur bande; many of ber citizene are fngi tives from their homes; a great part of her popnlation has been forced to fight the bloody hatiles of Jeff Davi-; her commerce is ruined; and she is threatened with the devastations of a retreating rebel army. If Gov. Clerk was wise, and would save to his native State what yet remeins of honor and prosperity, be would at orce give np the rebellion, as it is reported he has done, and, as is truly the case, procleim the State to be yet in the Union. But we do not believe that under present circumstancee be has done anythirg of the kind, nor that be will be likely t do so until the rebel army in Virginia is defeated. After that event, such a story as now reaches no would be extremely plausible. North Carolina had a number of rebellions and insurrections last century, and in at least two of them the rebels haid down their arms and took the oath of aliegiance when their canse became bopeless. The present generation would show its wildom and discretion by following the wholesome example

Judge Charles Dewey, long a member of the Supreme Court of Indiane, and for more than a generation one of the ablest and most prominent lawyers of that State, died at his residence in Charlestown, Clarke county, on the 25tb, at the advanced age of seventy-eight years, sfier a long illness. The Indianapolis Jonrnal saye, on the bench he was universally esteemed as one of the most acute, clear, discriminating, and impartial Judges who ever held a seat there. No State decisions are nore respected or oftener quoted than these of "Blackford's Reports," made up of the opinions of these eminent judges. Since his retirement from the bench Judge Dewey has confined himself to bis profession, ming ing but little, if at all, in prhlic affaira. Some five or six years ago a fall. which broke his leg, incapacitated him for active exertions of any kind, and he withdrew, in a good degree, from business. In person, Judge Dewey was tall and commanding, with a strongly marked conn'enance, and an eye of singular keenness and ponetration. WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30, 1862. The great city which guards the southern passes of the Mississippi is captured; "reseued is Orlcans from the rebel wolves," and General Butler may say with the Dauphin loyal sentiment of the Crescent City is disenthralled, and it can shout in gladness, . . Recovered is the lown of Orleans,

More bisseed hope did ne'er befall our state: there is nothing which ear prevent the advance of the large fleets of Porter and Farragut up the river to sweep from the bosom of "the worthless paper of the Southern Confederacy father of waters" every remnant of the wicked conspiracy which has incarnadined its former peaceful flow. In no part of its programme of operations did secession commit a more grave error than in presuming that it could make a Skaggerack, a Cattegat, or an Elsinore at any point of the Mississippi, and there, after the late custom of Denmark, exact dues from all passing vessels and every ton of freight they contained. It was a stupid blunder to suppose that the Northwestern and the Middle States could fe'l a compression of their great aorta, which might stop the pulsations of the ventricular lakes and arrest tho flow of the arterial rivers, without a gigantic effort to resist it. If England shuddered "in the interests of eivilization" at the tomporary stone blockade of Atlantie harhors, what has the world thought of the effort to scal np hermetically a river, the affluents of which encirele our whole continent, and which presents the only egress for the inland navigation of nearly two thirds of the States of the Union? Through the Illinois and Michigan canal the waters of the St. Lawrence are joined to those of the Mississlppi and the union assumes an insular position. It was not to be expected that the commerce of our country in circumnavigating any portion of its boundery should encounter foll-gates or custom-houses to lmpedo it. Frenzy never impelled a more suicidal act, nor madness a moro confirmed exhibition of lunacy; the very intensity of the efforts halked their effect: the strength of the nation was eronged to hind down the furious maniacs and they lie suhduod at tho mercy of the gov-

Tho Mississippi is ngain unlocked and the key is now in loyal hands, never to be ngain surrendered to traitors. We bold the upper river and its debouches at the Gulf of Mexico, so that all the intervening points must speedily fall into our possession, as Porter ascends acd tations of Louisiana are redeemed from the usurpation of military ferocity, and the cotton States of Arkansas and Mississippl will soon kept their produce, at a ruinous loss, from its natural markets. In a few weeks steamboats will be running to New O lenns again from Pittshurg, Cincinnati, St. Lonis, Louisville, and nll other points; their steam whistles will blow their notiona salutes to Dixie, and calliopes reverberate along the levees the almost forgotten notes of the Star Spangled Banner. The trade of the Mississippi which has been closed to us for so many months will soon be reopened, and let us hope, that, with re-established husiness associations, there may spring up an era of better feeling and a determination to forget the past and strive together vigorously in the future for the preservation of that Union which has made us the most proud, happy, and prosperous nation on the footstool of the Almighty.

The militia are gathering et their different places of rendezvons in goodly numbers. One of the recusent ones, who uttorly tafused to go, and swore he would die before he would go, drew a keife upon the gaild who went for him, when the guard fired npan him, breeking hie leg about the knee joint. His leg will have to be amputated—a sad warning to all others of his diposition. THE LATE DESPOTION IN NEW ORLEANS. The dependence of Great Britain on the low that the Federal arms have delivered the United States, for food, can be best shown by cople of New Orleans from rebel domination, a few statistical facts. Col. HENRY DENT .- This gentleman is an nounced it our columns as a candidate for the office of Marshal of the Chaucery Conrt. We have not a word to say of his claims in comparison with those of any competitor he may here now o: hereafter, but unquestionably his psculiar abilities signally qualify him for the place, and we all know that he formerly filled it with great

Our loyal people justly hold Mr. Dent in high estsem for his services as a loyal officer and man. No one can forget the important aid he rendered to the cause of loyalty et a time when it was in immicent peril. No man was ever placed in a more trying position, end no one, on such means as were placed in his hands, ever suc ceeded more parfectly. Ils pos essed the thorough confidence of General Anderson, who gave him the appointment of Provost Marshal; of General Shorman, who retained him in the place; and of General Buell, who largely relied upon hlm for the management of affairs in this city. And Colonel Dent never erjoyed any more confidence among these miltary leaders, who intimately knew not only his acts but the meaning end intent of each act, then he richly merited. He pursued in all things the delicate, prudent, and conscious policy which they wished him to pursue, and which they themselves pursued. There were a few Union men who were femiliar with all hle acts, and who knew how often he had to play Harvey Birch; and they perfectly relied upon his eagacity, his prndence, his seasonable zeal, his integrity and skill, for the successful manegement of nll the labyrinths of treason in this city. We have no hesitation in saying that Louisville owes very much of the sefaty of her present position to hlm.

AN ELEGANT TROPHY .- We have, through the conrtesy of Mr George W. Stewart, on exhibition in our counting room a very elegant and costly specimen of the rebel flag, which wes capturnd by Adjutant James F. McKee, of Col. Iloskins's Twelfth Kentucky, at a point not far from Fort Donelson, a short time efter the surrender of the Firt. The flig ie of heavy silk, fringed and tasseled with gold, and, as appears from the letteling, was presented to the "Bigby Greys by the ladies of Mount Pleasant," with the sentiment, "when they meet the foe, we feel secure." Unfortunetely for the "Greys," they met the fee at Donelson, and were themselves "secured," as the entire company are prisoners of war. Agrlenlture and commerce, too, are represented on tha hanner. The flag will remain in the Journel office a day or two for public inspection, when it will be

A lady correspondent asks if we have any some enterprising company or individual will no start an omnibus line from seme contral point is the city to Cave Hill. During the spring and anumer such a line would be constantly patronized by hundreds among us who would gladly spend more time in its quiet shades than they can afford to do without some cheip meass of conveyance there. Now that our basutiful "City of the Dead" hes become a resting place for hundreds of the brave rons of our country, let us heve some way provided by which strengers and residents may go and pay the last tributes which a grateful people love to lay upon the hero's grave. Whoever heard of a city like this, possessing a cemetery like our own, without nn omnibus line or a railroad leading to its gate?

REBELS RETURNING HOME -A letter from Versailles informe us that the Hon. Thomas P. Porter, late Speaker of the State Senate, and Mershall Carter, son of Dr. J. C. Carter, after several months among the robals in the according States, returned to their homes in that city on Sa'nrday last. They had hardly dusted their clothes after their travel from Dixie, when they were arrested by the Provost Marshal from Loxington, without much time for family greetings, or to infuse their accession poison into the miods of other rebel sympathizers. The worship of rehellion by rebels ought to be etopped, and no traitor, living or dead, should be allowed to pollute the soil of Kentucky.

AN EVIDENCE OF HOT WORK,-We have received from Mr. Wm. R. McCampbell, of the firm of Hntchineon, McCempbell, & Co., Louisville, and cutler to the Thirteenth Kentucky regimen, a little sapling about eight foot high and one inch ia diameter, cut hy Col. E. Hobson from the battle ground of Shiloh immediately where the opposing Kentucky brigades fought-where Roussean, after a desperate struggle, drove Breckinridge from the field.

This sepling is a remarkable memorial of the terrible charecter of the battle. It bears the marks of no less than 28 different bullsts. How any person can have escaped alive from where the leaden shower was so thick and terrible, it is hard to conceive.

Two Renel Companies Taken .- The Nash vide Union learns that the companies of Captains Hawkins and Cattle, raised in that city for the rebel army, were captured at Bridgeport, on the Tennessee river, at the crossing of the Chattanooga railroad, hy some troops of Gen. Mitchel's Division. Some three hurdred in all have heen captured, of whom one hundred end twentyfive heve heen brought to Nashville, the ros were to have arrived there on Monday night. The capture of the bridge is a very important achievement. The great work goes on gloriously The air is vecal with shorts of victory. All hail to the triumphant army of the Union.

There are no movements here of importance which are not contraband, and no features of the own or river worthy of note except the two ridges here, end which you have doubtless seen often described. The Tennessee at this point is nearly as wide as the Obio at Louisville and fully as wide as it is at Cincinnuti. It is a much more peantiful stream then the Oaio, and when one comparee the two, he deprecates the taste of the Frenchmen who are reported to have called the atter stream La Belle Ohio! The name of "The Like" given to e swamp neer the river is a misor. The bridge over the lake hardly deserves o he called a bridge. At the western end of it are the remains of the two cotton-bale hatteries prected by the Confederates. There are at least 500 bales of cotton in the two batteries. As a nale generally weighs 500 fbs, and as cotton is worth about 27 to 29c in New York, these two oatteries are worth at least $50,009-a nice sum of money in those parts; but it would do only for ocket-money out here, if we had to live in the hote; I am In at $3 50 a day, and boots, &c. extra. layed my joie ion with the msin army until a little of or nightfall

About 1 o'cock at night my brigades and hatteries were disposed, forming the extreme right wing, and ready for hattle. Shortly after daybreak Capt. Thompson opened fire on a robel battery posted on a hinff opposite my first brigade, and acrose a deep and prolonged hollow, three ded hy a creek, and densely worded on hoth sides. From its position, and that of its infusive supports licing the whols length of the bluff, it was apparent that creesing the hollow would be at heavy lose, unless the battery was first driven off. Thurb r was accordingly posted to assist Thompson by a cross fire, and at the eams time away the hiding places of the enemy on the hrow of the hill. This had the desired effect. After a few shells from Thurber the enemy fell hick, but not notil Thompson had dismonned one of their riff, diguns. During this affair Gen Grant came up and gave ms my direction of attack, which was forward at a right angle with the river, with which my line at the time ran ulmost parellel.

The batiery and its supports having base driven from that opposite buff, my command was puched forward, the brigadee in echelon, the first in front, and the whole preceded by skirmlehers. The hollow was crussed, and the hill gained almost without opposition. As General Sherman's division, next on my left, had not mede its appearance to support my advance, a halt was ordered for it to emeny.

O er the branch, up the bank, scross the initing ground, moved the steady list brigade; on the right, with some learning merchal the Al ite right, with equel electity, marched the 21, the whole in view, their bennars gaily decking the score. The skirmishers in scilon all the way cleared the rise and granged themselves belied the ground ewells, within seventy-live yards of the robel lines; as the ragiments approached them, seddenly a sheet of my kerry blazed from the ground ewells, wible seventy-live yards of the rebel lines; as the ragiments approached them, suddenly a sheet of mn kerry blazed from the wods, and a battery opened upon them. About the seme instant the right of Sherman's livision fell hastily back. To save my flatk, I was compelled to order a bait. In a short time Starman repulsed the enemy and recovered his lost ground. My skirmi-here, meanwhil; clung to their hillocks, sharp shooting at the hattery. Agalu the brigades advanced, their bayonet fixed for a charge, but presed by Sherman, and to threatened in front, the enemy removed their guna and fell backfrom the edge of the woods.
